

Biography

Lirong Xia was born on July 29, 1982 in Fengxin, Jiangxi Province, China. In 2004 he received a B.E. from the Department of Computer Science and Technology, Tsinghua University, Beijing, China. From 2004 to 2007 he worked as a research associate in the Department of Computer Science and Technology at Tsinghua University. In 2007 he joined the Ph.D. program of the Department of Computer Science at Duke University, and was awarded a James B. Duke Fellowship. He received an M.A. from the Department of Economics, Duke University in 2010. He will join Harvard Center for Research on Computation and Society (CRCS) as a postdoctoral researcher in September, 2011. He was awarded the Outstanding Research Initiation Project Award from the Department of Computer Science, Duke University in 2009, and was a finalist of the 2010 Facebook Ph.D. Fellowship Program.